

RIFLE SILHOUETTE

Rifle Metallic Silhouette is an air, Rimfire, Centerfire, service and black powder rifle shooting discipline where competitors aim to knock down metal animal-shaped targets. The targets are placed on steel stands in banks of five and set at a variety of known distances, with the competitors having a certain amount of time to knock as many down as they can. The various competitions are shot from a range of distance and positions, depending on the firearm caliber and category, but all competitions aim to improve hunting marksmanship skills under range conditions.
